His position did not entitle him to write such a letter, as neither the Democrats nor Republi-cans now have any confidence in him. Mr. Maxey added that he did not approve of the investigation, but he never believed that the investigation meant to impugn Hayes's title. Mr. Dibrell says: "We regard it as a direct attack upon us Tennessee Democrats in the house. It it a piece of impertinence for Key to attempt to dictate to our friends in Tennessee. It is simply advising the people to send Republicans in our places." Mr. House says the boot was uplifted to kick poor Key out of the cabinet, and the price he paid to remain was the signing of this letter. It will have no effect in Tennessee. Mr. Whitthorne says: Oh, it amounts to nothing. The only signs of revolution or Mexicanization I have seen are in this 'God and liberty' letter of the post-master general." Mr. Bright thought the letter ought not to be dignified by any notice; Mr. Key has no influence with Demo-crats or Republicans in Tennessee. A celebration was held at the same hour by the free thinkers, at the American circus, admission was by ticket, but without charge, and the audience numbered about six thousand Several speeches were made wholly devoted to proving Voltaire's enmity to all religion. The audience was very enthusiastic. After speeches the statute of Vol taire was crowned with flowers and deputations representing Paris and the provinces, with panners, marched around it, while the bands played and the audience sang the Marseillaise. It was the original intention of the movers of the meeting to erect the statute publicly in the Place Chateau d' Eau, but the government. forbade it. The government also prohibited a public ceremony by the clericals in honor of Joan of Arc. While the two Voltaire celebrations were proceeding, the cathedral of Notre Dame was filled by an immense congregation, consisting principally of women, to take part in the expiatory services ordered by the cardinal archbishop of Paris. The interior of the church was darkened and expiatory tapers burned before all the altars. From the pulpit a discourse was delivered, in which the preacher denounced Voltaire and glorified Joan of Arc.

The houses on the opposite side of the street emptied their goods into vacant lots and lost considerably. A wind has just tisen (forty-five minutes past twelve) and there is no telling that damage may yet be done. Our people are on the treets, and ready for action. It is not known whether the fire was the work of an incendiary or not. Two other fires began to born in different parts of the town, but were quickly extinguished. A promised rain is hailed with joy. One of the other fires was evidently incendiary, but the other may have been caused by sparks walted from the origina! fire. This misfortune does not fall on the main business portion of the town, but, of course, is severe on the losers. It is raining now, and we are saved. Killed her Daughter and Committed Saicide. Sr. Louis, May 31.—A widow lady named

Thompson, about fifry years old, highly con-nected and respected, killed her daughter Nettie, about sixteen years old, with a rezor while she (Nettie) was asieep, at Springfield, Missouri, night before last. She then cut her own throat, remporary insanity, occasioned by sickness, is assigned as the cause
